The defendant was on hand at the appointed place and time with his cattle but the plaintiffs did not appear. Being unable to wait for them very long beyond the agreed hour he left before they came. Instead of driving the cattle home again, a distance of ten miles, he left them at Coulsons. The evidence as to the arrangement under which they were so left is given by Coulson and the defendant and by no one else. Coulson says that the arrangement was that if the plaintiffs came along with the money for the cattle he was to take it and either pay it to the defendant at Leduc or pay it into a bank at Edmonton and have it wired to the defendants credit at his bank in Leduc. This story the defendant denies. His version of the arrangement is that...
