Brand New Book  Print on Demand .In language class we had learned that Chinese proverb, He who rides a tiger cannot dismount. Had my husband and I unwittingly mounted a tiger? Could we ride it? I looked at him beside me--so strong and unafraid. December, 1926: a time of great uncertainty weighed heavily on the Chinese city of Foochow. Against a backdrop of rumored armies, ambitious political leaders, and rebellious students, and amidst the creation of a new China, Ralph and Elizabeth Shrader arrived in China as missionaries and educators. With the help of other British and American missionaries, the Shraders began to build a life in Foochow. A myriad of students, home workers, and townspeople would come and go through their lives, each changing their perspectives and showing them the potential and the danger of the maturing tiger--China. In this adaptation of Elizabeth s journal from her time in China, her son, William Whitney Shrader, tells the story of their times. This compelling saga is more than the story of missionaries.
